Appomattox Native On Tour With College Choir

Lindsay W. Fleshman, a Junior at Virginia Union University and a selected member of the Virginia Union Concert Choir, is on a tour of many states with the concert choir from his school.

Mr. Fleshman, a native of Appomattox, is enjoying the tour and wishes all his friends at home were with him.

Lindsey was selected in the concert choir by try-outs and his Academic Standard with his courses. Before leaving the school on November 1, 1973, Lindsay was chosen as "Mr. Hospitality" of the choir. His duties are to greet the people at every stop they make on tour. The choir members chose Lindsay for this position because of his love for people around the campus.

He is the son of Mrs. Clara F. McFay of Appomattox.

STONEWALL EXTENSION HOMEMAKERS CLUB

The Stonewall Extension Homemakers Club met on Nov. 8, 1973, in the home of Mrs. Rebecca Bondurant, with ten members and one visitor present.

Mrs. Bondurant led the devotion, reading Psalm 113, followed by a prayer.

The Pennies for Friendship were collected then the roll was called and the minutes read.

We were reminded that our December meeting would be a covered dish luncheon, with a Christmas theme, in the home of Ann Stratton. Each member chose the name of a neighborhood shut-in whom they particularly wished to remember during the holidays. Plans were made to fill one Christmas box.

Inez Foster reported on the program planning meeting which she had attended.

Mrs. Helen Routon gave the program on "Table Settings."

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Fertilizer, if you can get it next spring, will probably be up as much as 33%.

Now I don't want to push the panic button but you might want to get it while you can.

Now's a good time to plow down your phosphate and potash for corn.

I'd get all my nitrogen down on small grain. There'll be some leaching losses, but they'll probably be less than increased nitrogen cost next spring.
